Methodists To Celebrate Centennial

100 YEAR HISTORY OF METHODIST CHURCH IN BAY ST. LOUIS GIVEN

Mississippi Methodism has produced some of the noblest men and women in the history of the church and every congregation, though large or small, has made its contribution to the building of the Kingdom of God.

History links the present with the past and today we look into the past to glimpse the highlights in the growth of Main Street Methodist Church.

Main Street Methodist Church was organized in the year 1852 in the town of Sheldoboro, now known as Bay St. Louis. Methodism was exceedingly weak along the gulf section and this particular community did not belong specifically within the territory of either of the two pastoral charges in that section. The Biloxi circuit, George T. Vickers, president-in-charge, did not reach as far west as the western side of the Bay of St. Louis, and the Gainesville circuit, James O. Woodward, pastor, did not reach that far south.

The actual organization of a Methodist congregation was effected by E. D. Pitts, a local Methodist preacher and teacher who had established schools at Napoleon, on Pearl River above Pearlington, and in the town of Sheldoboro. The new church was attached to the Gainesville charge.

The name of Gainesville Mission in the Pseuding district reminds us of a village of some size that once served as the center of a Methodist circuit. Gainesville was on Pearl River, about twenty-five miles from Bay St. Louis.

Before the Civil War it was of importance as a trading place for a considerable section of the adjacent territory. From the early days of Methodism in Mississippi along Pearl River, but they had been stronger on the west side of the river in the vicinity of John Ford's. Just how early Methodist churches were established on the east side of the river nobody seems to know. The first circuit east of Pearl River and south of the Whitesand circuit was formed at the Annual Conference held at Vicksburg in 1836. It was called Pearlington from a small community, also on Pearl River, about eight miles south of Gainesville.

By 1843 the work had extended along the Mississippi Gulf Coast and the name of the charge was changed to Biloxi, from the chief coast city.

In 1858 the Gainesville charge consisted of four churches: Gainesville, Pearlington, Bay St. Louis and Jordan River. Henry D. Berry was pastor that year, which was marked by gracious revivals in the church. From that time until the outbreak of the Civil War the Gainesville charge had a fairly large membership, but they were in the main poor people, so that in 1864 it was served as a mission and appeared under that name. The name of Gainesville appears for the last time in the list of appointments in 1870, after which the name of the charge was changed to Pearlington, the name by which it had been called thirty years before.

In the year 1874, Bay St. Louis was one of the four main preaching places in early coast Methodism, the other three places being Biloxi, Handsboro and Pass Christian. In 1880, services were held in a small building at the corner of Main and Second Street on property given for the purpose by the late John V. Touline. Rev. J. W. McClarin was the pastor.

Annual Conference records of 1881 state that Rev. M. C. Callaway, pastor, told of the Handsboro Circuit: the churches were at Handsboro, with 400 white population and 50 methodists, and a good house of worship; Bay St. Louis with 2,000 population, a good church building, and 16 members, well attended at times; Scott, near Pass Christian, with a small population of 14 members. He had received four members and baptized nine children during the year.

In 1886, Bay St. Louis raised $36.20 during the week of prayer and self-denial. J. W. McLaurin, Agent of American Bible Society, presented the Bible cause on Sunday and raised $52 for the cause of a county society for the distribution of the Bible in that section.

An interesting item listed in the history of the church is that the Rev. V. V. Boone, the pastor at Bay St. Louis, married Miss Lillian May Hall of Bay St. Louis on October 30, 1889, the ceremony being performed by Dr. T. S. West, Presiding Elder.

In the year 1890, H. C. Brown and L. Wallace Wood, under appointment and direction of I. W. Cooper, presiding elder, after consultation, changed charge, the former going to Covington and the latter to Bay St. Louis. The new pastor at Bay St. Louis wrote of his first reception under such leadership as Hon. E. W. Bowser, Dr. R. J. Turner, J. C. Grimes, M. L. Ansley, W. F. Hall, and L. N. Harlin.

In 1892, W. G. Forsyth was the first flying service. An Astro-200 plane will fly over the Hancock County area on Saturday morning.

The game will be played on the field at St. Stanislaus Stadium, which is owned and operated by the St. Stanislaus parish. The game will be officiated by Judge J. P. Dyer.

SCHEDULE FULFILLING FOR STATE CONVICTS

FURCHMAN Miss. — Ten-day Christmas furloughs for deserving convicts will begin at Mississippi's state Penitentiary here Dec. 1, Sept. Marvin Wiggins said.

Thirty-five convicts have been approved for the 10-day leaves so far. Although called Christmas furloughs, only a small number of the prisoners are actually home for Christmas Day. The furlough period extends from Dec. 1 to March 1, 1953.

The furlough period extends from Dec. 1 to March 1, 1953. The furlough period extends from Dec. 1 to March 1, 1953.

The prison furlough program was started in 1944 and since then "very few" furlough violations have occurred, Wiggins said. About a dozen failed to return out of more than 2,000 who have been released.

All but one of those violating the furlough have been recaptured.

An ironic case in the Christmas furlough program was that of Kennis Wagner, Mississippi's notorious bad man and former circus trick-shot artist.

Wagner, serving a life sentence for the murder of a Greene County deputy sheriff, got a Christmas furlough every year from 1944 to 1947 and dutifully returned each time.

He had just returned from his 10-day furlough in 1948 when he escaped from the institution with guns provided him by a prison trusty.

He is still at large.

ALL BAPTIST CHURCHES CONTRIBUTE TO MISSIONS

JACKSON—Gulf Coast Baptist Association was one of 22 associations in the state that was one hundred percent in Cooperative Program giving during the past convention year, Nov. 1, 1951-Nov. 1, 1952.

That means that every one of the 22 churches in the association made a contribution to world missions through the Baptist Cooperative Program according to Dr. Charles A. Coleman, of Jackson, state Baptist association secretary.

There are 75 associations in the state with a total membership of $39,319 and they gave a total of $1,039,000 to the Cooperative Program.

An additional $709,332 given to designated causes made a grand total of $1,748,332 given to all world missions.

The Gulf Coast Association is composed of churches in Harrison and Hancock Counties.

COLEMAN WOULD SEPARATE SHERIFF, TAX COLLECTOR POST

HATTIESBURG—Mississippi Attorney General J. P. Coleman says the state hasn't had one material improvement in law enforcement in the last 100 years.

"We are trying to enforce the laws with 1852 machinery under 1952 conditions," Coleman said.

SCHOOL LUNCHROOMS PAID $4 MILLION IN PAST SESSION

Mississippi food handlers found a four million dollar customer in the State's School Lunchrooms last year, a report just released by the U. S. Department of Agriculture shows.

State School lunchrooms bought $4,615,767 worth of food from local merchants during the school year. In addition, smaller quantities of food were donated to schools and, in some instances to charitable institutions by the United States Department of Agriculture. These donated foods, distributed in Mississippi under the direction of Ben F. Middleton, of the State Department of Education, totaled 98 carloads.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hicks Edwards Jr. and daughter Kathy spent Sunday here with relatives.
